

Dorothy A. Johnson Center
FOR PHILANTHROPY

Joel J. Orosz Fellowship in Philanthropy
Dorothy A. Johnson Center for Philanthropy

Applications are due: May 6, 2022

The Joel J. Orosz Fellowship in Philanthropy was initiated by friends and colleagues of Joel Orosz in recognition of his years of service, his dedication, and his contributions in the field of philanthropy.

About the Fellowship

The Orosz Fellowship is designed to assist students at Grand Valley State University – undergraduate or graduate in any major or program – interested in studying the field of philanthropy as it relates to their specific academic discipline.

The Orosz Fellow for the academic year of 2022-2023 will receive an award of $2,500 and, working with a faculty mentor of their choice, will be expected to engage in independent research or an advanced project to expand the understanding of individual or organized philanthropy. The Orosz Fellow will be given an opportunity to present on the resulting product(s) in the following year.

If academic credit is desired, the appointed Fellow should arrange for an independent study course with a faculty member of their choice, and should create a product suitable for obtaining credit.

About Joel Orosz

Joel Orosz, Ph.D., served as a Distinguished Professor of Philanthropic Studies at Grand Valley State University from 2001-2010. During that time, he founded The Grantmaking School at the Dorothy A. Johnson Center for Philanthropy. Dr. Orosz is an experienced teacher of philanthropy, highly sought after public speaker, and well-published scholar. Additionally, he is an accomplished foundation executive, with fifteen years' experience in grantmaking, administration, and governance, serving in various capacities at the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Dr. Orosz remains engaged on several advisory committees including the Johnson Center for Philanthropy, and Learning to Give, as well as a trustee for two private foundations. He received his Ph.D. in history from Case Western Reserve in Cleveland, OH.
